Affected items

Web Server
Alert group	Cross site scripting
Severity	High
Description	Cross-site Scripting (XSS) refers to client-side code injection attack wherein an attacker can execute malicious scripts into a legitimate website or web application. XSS occurs when a web application makes use of unvalidated or unencoded user input within the output it generates.
Recommendations	Apply context-dependent encoding and/or validation to user input rendered on a page

Web Server
Alert group	DOM-based cross site scripting
Severity	High
Description	This script is possibly vulnerable to Cross Site Scripting (XSS) attacks. Cross site scripting (also referred to as XSS) is a vulnerability that allows an attacker to send malicious code (usually in the form of Javascript) to another user. Because a browser cannot know if the script should be trusted or not, it will execute the script in the user context allowing the attacker to access any cookies or session tokens retained by the browser. While a traditional cross-site scripting vulnerability occurs on the server-side code, document object model based cross-site scripting is a type of vulnerability which affects the script code in the client's browser.
Recommendations	Your script should filter metacharacters from user input.

Alert group	HTML form without CSRF protection
Severity	Medium
Description	This alert requires manual confirmation Cross-Site Request Forgery (CSRF, or XSRF) is a vulnerability wherein an attacker tricks a victim into making a request the victim did not intend to make. Therefore, with CSRF, an attacker abuses the trust a web application has with a victim's browser. Acunetix found an HTML form with no apparent anti-CSRF protection implemented. Consult the 'Attack details' section for more information about the affected HTML form.
Recommendations	Verify if this form requires anti-CSRF protection and implement CSRF countermeasures if necessary. The recommended and the most widely used technique for preventing CSRF attacks is know as an anti-CSRF token, also sometimes referred to as a synchronizer token. The characteristics of a well designed anti-CSRF system involve the following attributes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The anti-CSRF token should be unique for each user session • The session should automatically expire after a suitable amount of time • The anti-CSRF token should be a cryptographically random value of significant length • The anti-CSRF token should be cryptographically secure, that is, generated by a strong Pseudo-Random Number Generator (PRNG) algorithm • The anti-CSRF token is added as a hidden field for forms, or within URLs (only necessary if GET requests cause state changes, that is, GET requests are not idempotent) • The server should reject the requested action if the anti-CSRF token fails validation When a user submits a form or makes some other authenticated request that requires a Cookie, the anti-CSRF token should be included in the request. Then, the web application will then verify the existence and correctness of this token before processing the request. If the token is missing or incorrect, the request can be rejected.

Recommendations	Verify if this form requires anti-CSRF protection and implement CSRF countermeasures if necessary. The recommended and the most widely used technique for preventing CSRF attacks is know as an anti-CSRF token, also sometimes referred to as a synchronizer token. The characteristics of a well designed anti-CSRF system involve the following attributes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The anti-CSRF token should be unique for each user session • The session should automatically expire after a suitable amount of time • The anti-CSRF token should be a cryptographically random value of significant length • The anti-CSRF token should be cryptographically secure, that is, generated by a strong Pseudo-Random Number Generator (PRNG) algorithm • The anti-CSRF token is added as a hidden field for forms, or within URLs (only necessary if GET requests cause state changes, that is, GET requests are not idempotent) • The server should reject the requested action if the anti-CSRF token fails validation When a user submits a form or makes some other authenticated request that requires a Cookie, the anti-CSRF token should be included in the request. Then, the web application will then verify the existence and correctness of this token before processing the request. If the token is missing or incorrect, the request can be rejected.

Alert group	Clickjacking: X-Frame-Options header missing
Severity	Low
Description	Clickjacking (User Interface redress attack, UI redress attack, UI redressing) is a malicious technique of tricking a Web user into clicking on something different from what the user perceives they are clicking on, thus potentially revealing confidential information or taking control of their computer while clicking on seemingly innocuous web pages. The server didn't return an X-Frame-Options header which means that this website could be at risk of a clickjacking attack. The X-Frame-Options HTTP response header can be used to indicate whether or not a browser should be allowed to render a page inside a frame or iframe. Sites can use this to avoid clickjacking attacks, by ensuring that their content is not embedded into other sites.
Recommendations	Configure your web server to include an X-Frame-Options header. Consult Web references for more information about the possible values for this header.
